New Camden Gas Rate About Same As in Effect Here

Camden Fight Brought Gas Down From 65½ to 55 Cents Per Thousand

HISTORY OF FIGHT

Passage of Rate Ordinance Started Battle in April, 1929

The City of Camden waged a successful fight for a reduction in gas rates, but the new low rate obtained in that fight is practically the same now in effect in Hope, The Star learned Wednesday.

In an effort to determine what chance Hope has of obtaining cheaper gas, The Star asked the Camden News to furnish a history of the successful rate reduction campaign in the Ouachita county city.

Camden originally had a 75-cent rate, with 10 per cent discount making 67½ cents the net rate.

55-Cent Rate for Both

The new Camden rate is 55 cents, no discount, and a $1.50 minimum.

The Hope rate is 58 cents, less 3 cents discount, a net rate of 55 cents. Hope has a 50-cent service charge. Camden has no service charge, but the minimum bill is $1.50 regardless of the amount of gas used.

On very small bills, Hope is slightly cheaper than Camden on medium and large bills; Camden is under Hope. The first 1,000 cubic feet costs Hope $1.05, Camden $1.60. A bill for 2,000 cubic feet costs Hope $1.60, Camden $1.50; 3,000 cubic feet costs Hope $2.15, Camden $1.65; 5,000 cubic feet costs Hope $3.25, Camden $2.75; and 10,000 feet costs Hope $5.25, Camden $5.50.

In Hope the gas utility is operated directly by the Arkansas Natural Gas corporation, a Cities Service unit.

Retail, Wholesale Concerns

In Camden the local distributing concern, the Camden Gas company, is a stock firm controlled by St. Louis men. It buys its gas wholesale at the city gates from the Arkansas Natural Gas corporation—the Cities Service company controlling the fields and lines in the Monroe gas dome area.

A promoter went to Camden in 1923, obtained a franchise under pressure of that city's need for fuel during the development of the South Arkansas oil fields, and sold this franchise to the stock company organized to acquire it.

On April 1, 1929, the Camden city council launched its fight against the 67½-cent rate, passing an ordinance establishing new low rates. The gas company obtained a temporary injunction to prohibit putting the rates into effect. The company had first sought to carry the fight into federal court at Texarkana, but United States Judge Youmans threw the case out for want of equity.

Flight in State Courts

The gas company then obtained its temporary injunction from Ouachita circuit court. The fight dragged on until December, 1930, when Circuit Judge W. A. Speer ruled that the gas ordinance was valid and ordered the gas company to pay consumers a refund totalling $17,000 up to December 6, 1930.

The company posted bond and appealed to the Arkansas Supreme Court. The supreme court upheld the circuit court.

Two firms of attorneys handled the case for the consumers, Haynie, Parks & Westfall, and Gaughan, Sifford & Gaughan.

Mayor George R. Haynie had helped launch the fight as an attorney prior to his election as mayor, and continued the fight while in office.

The case was not officially closed until this February, with the settlement of litigation between attorneys and the gas consumers who had failed to sign the petition which led to the long and successful fight.

The consumers in their petition assured the attorneys of 20 per cent of the amount of the refund, and this was the lawyers' only pay during the long proceedings. All but 200 of the gas consumers had signed the petition, and the attorneys sought later on to collect their 20 per cent from consumers whether they signed the petition or not. Eventually the circuit court held that consumers who did not sign the petition could not be made to pay the attorneys, but all but 200 of Camden's 1,600 gas consumers did pay.

Coolidge 1936 Candidate

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—(AP)—Calvin Coolidge, in the opinion of Professor Arthur H. Holcombe of Harvard, international authority on political affairs, will be "an excellent presidential prospect in 1936." "The conjecture may be safely hazarded," Professor Holcombe said, "that Coolidge would like to be president again. His problem, from a strictly personal point of view, is much like that of Theodore Roosevelt after his retirement from the presidency in 1909."

Legion Ball Club To Be Organized

Meeting for Players to Be Held at the City Hall Thursday Night

All boys up to 17 years of age, who plan to try for the American Legion Junior baseball club this spring and summer are urged to attend a meeting of organization to be held at the city hall in Hope on Thursday night, March 31, beginning at 7:45.

Sid Bundy has been selected by the American Legion post as manager of the baseball activities for the coming season.

Mr. Bundy is anxious that a large number of boys attend the meeting on Thursday night. It is hoped that practice for the teams will begin in the next few days.

Organists of Three States to Convene

Convention Lasting Two Days to Begin on April 26

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Organists from Mississippi, Tennessee and Arkansas will gather here April 26 and 27 for the Tri-State conference of the American Guild of Organists.

Eldon Foot, president of the Arkansas Guild, predicted more than 100 members would attend the meeting. The Little Rock Guild will be host.

Mrs. Morris Jessup, president of the host guild, announced a tentative program, which includes a Fellowship Dinner at the Hotel Lafayette, convention headquarters, Tuesday evening, April 26.

The annual Guild Service will be held at Trinity Cathedral after the dinner. Service music, organ and choir, will be presented under the direction of the cathedral organist, Miss Martha McAninch.

The opening business session will be held Wednesday morning, April 27, and will consist of reports and discussion of problems. A luncheon will be held at the First Presbyterian church, with Miss Hattie May Butterfield, Fort Smith musician, presiding.

A program of organ and piano music will be given in the afternoon at the Second Presbyterian church under direction of Miss Martha Cline.

Banking Revision Bill Is Attacked in Senate Hearing

Virginia Senator Claims Propaganda Stimulated Opposition

MEASURE IS OPPOSED

Glass Bill Intended to Curb Speculation in Stocks

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A charge that opposition to the Glass banking revision bill was inspired by "stimulated propaganda" was made in the Senate banking committee hearing Wednesday by Senator Glass, Virginia Democrat.

He shouted this accusation during testimony by James Francis Burke, counsel for a Pittsburgh clearing house, opposing the bill, which was intended to curb stock speculation.

Burke replied that the bankers had a right to come to Washington and have done so voluntarily.

Burke who is also general counsel of the Republican National Committee and a former member of the House, presented a resolution of a clearing house association opposing the bill as "unwise and unnecessary."

He asserted that a sweeping revision of the country's banking system was particularly inadvisable under present conditions.

Probe of Co-Ed's Death Continues

El Dorado Police Chief Promises Surprise Investigation

EL DORADO.—Although four days have elapsed since Irvin Eddington, feeble-minded tramp, told police that he attacked Miss Jackie Ruth Youngblood, Magnolia A. and M. College cheer leader, struck her over the head with a stone and watched her stagger to her death beneath the wheels of a Missouri Pacific passenger train, police and coroner's forces Tuesday held widely divergent views on the cause of death.

While Missouri Pacific officials were conducting a routine examination of members of the crew of the train which struck Miss Youngblood, police revealed that a hobo named attempted to entice the four-year-old daughter of G. A. Hogg, local junk man, into the woods near her home on pretense of an "Easter egg hunt." The child screamed and the tramp fled. The incident occurred only three blocks from the spot where Miss Youngblood was killed Friday night.

Chief Jones of Shreveport, who is a native of this section also has a traveling quartet this season.

Other popular singers and members of quartets are, Frank Jones of Shreveport; Arthur Finney and Eulus Corbell of Idabel, Okla., the Hooker boys of near Nashville and many others who are expected to be in attendance at this program.

Explosion Causes Death and Injury

Two Dead, Thirty Wounded in Blast at Star Film Company

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia.—(AP)—Two persons burned to death and it is believed that many others lost their lives in a fire which destroyed the studios of the Star Film company, after a terrific explosion Tuesday night.

Thirty persons were taken to a hospital, where attendants reported that 17 of them were in a critical condition.

However, Police Chief Cross changed his opinion saying he is not positive that Eddington killed the girl outright, but that he "caused her death, all right."

Chief Cross said he had "something up his sleeve for the Grand Jury." He declined to reveal the nature of his "surprise" but indicated it would substantiate his murder theory.

No effort has been made to determine positively if the tramp is insane and an alibi he gave to deputies and reporters in a complete denial of any connection with the death of Miss Youngblood has not been checked.

Three Injured as Train Hits Auto in Texas

JACKSONVILLE, Texas.—(AP)—A passenger train struck an automobile at a grade crossing here Tuesday, injuring three Overton oil field workers. V. C. Lynch was hurt seriously. J. T. Guyne and T. A. Davis escaped with minor injuries. They were returning from a fishing trip to the Neches river.

Community Sing Scheduled April 24

Singers From All Southwest Arkansas Expected to Attend

A community singing for southwest Arkansas has been announced to be held at the city hall in Hope on Sunday afternoon, April 24.

Invitations are being sent to quartets and musical directors in Idabel, Okla.; Dallas, Tex.; and Shreveport, La., as well as to many in neighboring counties.

These in charge of arrangements for the occasion are planning one of the best singings ever attempted in the city.

It is possible that Virgil O. Stamps, of Dallas, who is perhaps the most widely known director of vocal music in the south will attend. Quartets from the Stamps-Baxter Music Company have appeared in Hope on numerous occasions and they have always had large audiences in this section.

Frank Jones, of Shreveport, who is a native of this section also has a traveling quartet this season.

Other popular singers and members of quartets are, Frank Jones of Shreveport; Arthur Finney and Eulus Corbell of Idabel, Okla., the Hooker boys of near Nashville and many others who are expected to be in attendance at this program.

Wilmer Hays Held Without Bail For Wallace Murder

White Man Third to Be Bound Over for Storekeeper's Death

ACCUSED BY NEGRO

Ed Washington Says He Saw Hays Swing Axe—Story Denied

Wilmer Hays, white man and the third person to be held for the murder of Alfred Wallace, aged storekeeper on the Patmos-Dooley's Ferry road, was bound over to the grand jury without bail at the conclusion of a hearing in Hope municipal court Wednesday morning.

The chief witness against Hays was Ed Washington, negro who said he saw Hays strike Wallace with an axe. Washington, also held to the grand jury for the murder, confessed a week ago that he saw Hays kill Wallace over a $25 debt. He declared that Hays picked up a box supposed to contain the old man's money and threw it to Washington, the negro saying that he, later disposed of the box.

Washington told his story again Wednesday from the witness chair in Municipal court.

Hays did not go on the stand. Represented by Attorneys Monroe and Corrigan, he denied Washington's story in its entirety. Hays contended he was elsewhere when the crime was committed, and his first knowledge of the particulars of the case was obtained following his arrest.

The white man has been arrested twice, once early in the case, later being freed on insufficient evidence; and the second time, when Washington made a signed statement implicating him.

A second negro—the third person involved in the murder investigation—is Henry Wyatt, also bound over to the grand jury a few weeks ago.

Jap Who Planned Pacific Flight Dies

New Ship Plunges Down as Airman Tries for Take Off

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Captain Y. Nagoya, Japanese flier, was killed Tuesday in the plane which he hoped to pilot across the Pacific ocean for the $25,000 prize offered by the Tokyo newspaper Hochi Shimbun.

The plane, a new Bellanca delivered only a week ago, dove into the water of Miss Basin near Floyd Bennett airport soon after Nagoya attempted to take off for Newcastle, Del., where the Bellanca company was to make final adjustments.

The plane left the ground with difficulty, rose 25 feet into the air, but the ground, bounced up to approximately 200 feet and went into a dive. Control seemed to be recovered, it touched the ground again and bounced up again, and then glided into the water, bursting into flames as it struck.

Futrelman Anthony A. Persido, 26, and Richard Galata, 25, an unemployed man, dove into the water and pulled the flier's body from the burning plane.

Her Baby Guarded From Kidnapers

A threat to kidnap the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Simpson Dean of Montclair, Del., was reported to have been made in a telephone message to the baby's nurse, Mrs. Dean (above) formerly was Miss Pauline du Pont daughter of Mrs. William K. du Pont of the famous munitions family. Police were reported to be guarding the Dean home.

Bradley Bank Is Robbed Wednesday

Jack Meek and Mother Forced Into Vault by Pair of Bandits

BRADLEY, Ark.—(AP)—Two bandits Wednesday morning forced Mrs. J. Meek, bookkeeper and her son Jack into the vault and robbed the Bank of Bradley of $3,000, escaping in an automobile.

Jack Meek married the former Miss Mary Lillian McKee of Hope. The junior Mrs. Meek spent Tuesday night with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. G. McKee, here, returning Wednesday morning to Lewisville, where she is a school teacher.

As Mrs. Meek would not return to her husband's home in Bradley until Wednesday night, the McKee family's first news of the bank robbery was through the Associated Press dispatch.

This is the second bank robbery in Lafayette county within six months. Last fall the First National was held up at Lewisville, the robbers escaping in a car.

Raise in Postage Rates Disputed

House Approves Many Revenue Raising Bills in Hearing Wednesday

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A dueling house Wednesday morning straightened out a new tax raising road, blocked out for it by the Ways and Means Committee, giving approval to revenue producing amendments calculated to add millions to government funds.

Leaders however saw a dispute over a proposal to raise the postage rates one cent.

Speaker Garner again participated in the discussions of the morning session.

Youth Killed at Shreveport Identified

EL DORADO.—(AP)—Buried last Friday at Shreveport, La., as unidentified, the body of Jack Chaffman Craft, 19, El Dorado and Norfolk youth, will be returned here for second burial.

Craft was killed March 13 near Shreveport when a truck loaded with pipe figured in a crash with a bus. Efforts to identify the body failed and it was buried Friday.

Craft left El Dorado for Longview, Texas, the day before he was killed. When he did not arrive there, his father, N. A. Craft, went to Shreveport, had the body exhumed and identified it, after reading newspaper accounts of the accident.

New York Official Held in Contempt

Bronx Commissioner Faces Jail for Refusal to Answer Probers

NEW YORK.—(AP)—William J. Flynn, commissioner of the Hofstadter investigating Committee Tuesday, was faced with the risk of a 30-day jail sentence.

Supreme Court Justice John Ford held him in contempt for refusal to answer the questions of Attorney Samuel Seabury yesterday and directed opposing attorneys to file orders tomorrow suggesting a penalty.

Mr. Seabury, opening the argument, contended Flynn's constant interruption in the course of yesterday's examination were to delay the proceedings and to avoid answering pertinent questions.

The committee, seeking evidence of graft and corruption in New York city government, would have given Flynn ample opportunity to answer accusations of Louis Willard, he said, but could not allow witnesses to dictate to it.

Estimates the number of destitute families in Ohio's eight largest counties last month at more than 85,000. In Cleveland, for example, the governor declared: "Ohio, the poorest and richest state in the union, may not and shall not permit its citizens to starve."

At the same time, he warned legislators he would "not look with favor" on any program which failed to include "a just and equitable tax" on public utilities and opposed any additional tax on "already overburdened farmers and home-owners." His own program calls for an increase of the utilities tax from 1.35 per cent to 2.35 per cent, transportation companies excluded.

Legislative leaders predicted the governor's program would be adopted by Thursday night, although some urban representatives termed it inadequate for the needs of the larger cities. In Cleveland, for example, the Joint Relief Committee has estimated $7,500,000 will be required in the county for the remainder of the year, whereas the county can expect only about $4,500,000, under the governor's plan.

Besides raising the utilities tax rate, the White program would authorize counties to issue relief bonds, permit boards of education to supply shoes, clothing, and medical attention to the needy children; permit political subdivisions to use their share of the gasoline and motor vehicle taxes for relief purposes; and create a state commission of nine to supervise relief expenditures.

The increased utility excise tax would be used for the retirement of relief bonds.

All Amendments Fought in Attempt to Speed Up Action

Sponsors Expect to Present Measure to Senate Later Wednesday

21 VOTE MAJORITY

Provides for Refunding Road District Bonds if They Mature

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The House voted 46 to 14 to meet as a conference committee to consider the new Graham refunding bill.

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—As the Graham bond refunding bill was called up in the House, Wednesday morning, those sponsoring it decided to fight any amendment to speed up final action and get it before the Senate during the day.

Thirteen amendments were offered, one of which was voted on and rejected.

The House has not taken a final vote on any refunding bill and Graham forces are opposing the amendments, including some to which they do not particularly object, to force a vote on it during the day.

The Senate met for a short time, heard Prosecuting Attorney C. G. Bailey, of Pulaski county, attacked and defended for his connections with any refunding legislation.

As set up the Graham bill provides for refunding road district bonds if they mature yearly.

In defeating the amendments, the Graham forces were operating with a majority of 21 votes.

Ohio Legislature Plans Jobless Aid

Gov. White Outlines Relief Program as Special Session Convenes

COLUMBUS.—(AP)—The Ohio legislature, for the first time in history, went into extraordinary session Tuesday to provide relief for the state's destitute thousands.

Gov. George White, who called the special session, personally appeared before the assembly to present his four-point program for raising $23,500,000 for unemployment relief. With in a short time four bills embodying his suggestions were on their way to committee hearings.

Estimating the number of destitute families in Ohio's eight largest counties last month at more than 85,000, the governor declared: "Ohio, the poorest and richest state in the union, may not and shall not permit its citizens to starve."

At the same time, he warned legislators he would "not look with favor" on any program which failed to include "a just and equitable tax" on public utilities and opposed any additional tax on "already overburdened farmers and home-owners." His own program calls for an increase of the utilities tax from 1.35 per cent to 2.35 per cent, transportation companies excluded.

In Cleveland, for example, the Joint Relief Committee has estimated $7,500,000 will be required in the county for the remainder of the year, whereas the county can expect only about $4,500,000, under the governor's plan.

Besides raising the utilities tax rate, the White program would authorize counties to issue relief bonds, permit boards of education to supply shoes, clothing, and medical attention to the needy children; permit political subdivisions to use their share of the gasoline and motor vehicle taxes for relief purposes; and create a state commission of nine to supervise relief expenditures.

CHAPTER 1
"Susan Carey!"
The girl looked up to see the brown eyes of the shorthand teacher fastened on her.
"Two words wrong today. However am I going to teach you how to spell 'believe' and 'necessary'?"
Miss Allen's tone was superior and cutting. Susan thought. The girl flushed to the roots of her hair. Oh, how she hated this business of learning to be a stenographer! She never would learn really, she felt certain of that. It was humiliating beyond belief to be haled up before the desk this way, to be reprimanded. True, there were only three other students within hearing range. The rest sat huddled around their tables, four to a group, struggling with n-hooks and vowel positions and whatnot. Horrible, horrible invention, shorthand!

something in." Susan winced at the thought of Aunt Jessie staring angrily through her spectacles, on hearing that Susan "couldn't read and catch on" to this r and n-hook business. Aunt Jessie was "awfully strict" and she had been raised in an old-fashioned school and believed in the old-fashioned maxims. "Spare the rod and spoil the child" was one of her favorite sayings. "Beauty is only skin deep," and "Handsome is as handsome does" were Aunt Jessie's maxims. She didn't want to use lipstick or rouge and she grumbled even about powder. She had been known to say two words before she'd rather see Susan dead at her feet than with makeup on her face.
All this was rather hard on Susan who was 19, dark and handsome in a tragic way, rather after the manner of Jean Crawford. Her eyes were said to be like La Crawford's, in their depth and size. The girl's face had the strong, clear-cut, yet utterly feminine contour of the motion picture stars. Susan's figure was lovely, too. Slim and nicely curved in the right places. Although how anyone could be expected to look attractive in Cousin Ruth's seamy-before-last blue serge suit Susan didn't know.
The girl had tried to be optimistic sometimes when she went to school and saw the adorable gowns the film stars wore she came home looking, cheated. She could never, never hope to wear anything but a $2.95 frock from Weegman's basement. Aunt Jessie thought there was no place like Weegman's basement.

Mena Students to Aid Coal Miners

Commonwealth College Group Leaves for Kentucky Fields

MENA, Ark.—(AP)—Students carrying supplies for striking Harlan, Ky.,
coal miners, will leave Commonwealth
College, labor institution near here,
Wednesday.

Laurie Koch, head of the college, and Harold Coy, instructor, will lead
the party, which consists of Leo Gruen, New York newspaper man,
Sam Sandburg, and Isaac Greenburg.
Koch said they planned to attempt a test of the right to carry supplies through guarded coal towns following the turning back of a National Student League delegation.

"We are bringing food to the miners and copies of the bill of rights to deputize mine superintendents barring the highways," Koch said. "We are not Communists."

The itinerary is planned through
Little Rock, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Frankfurt and Lexington, with meetings en route. The group plans to ask the protection of Governor Laffoon.

The college students voted to demand a federal inquiry and to give one cent from the seven cent cost of each meal as a fund for strike relief.
The group will arrive in Little Rock Wednesday afternoon. Food and clothing is being carried, donated by Mena merchants.

New Uses Sought For Cotton Staple

Chemist Says Natural Fiber Can Compete Against Synthetic Products

NEW ORLEANS.—(AP)—New uses for cotton described by the American Chemical Society Monday gave this natural fiber an indefinite prospect of successful competition against the new products of chemical synthesis.

Cotton was described as one of nature's finest grades of cellulose by H.
J. Skinner, a chemist of Boston. Trees, grasses, sugar cane, plants of all sorts supply cellulose, which chemists are able to make over into goods to compete with some of cotton's uses.

But the new fields for nature's finished cellulose, cotton, are at present curtailing the progress of synthesis.
Mr. Skinner mentioned first, the University of North Carolina experiment aimed at converting the entire cotton plant into cellulose simply by bailing and selling the stalks without picking the cotton. He outlined difficult scientific problems which are yet to be solved before there can be practical marketing of such a cotton crop.

The North Carolina experiment does not aim at all kinds of cotton, but only at grades which are the more difficult to raise and which might fall behind in the race with synthetics.

"An important need of the cotton and textile industry," said Mr. Skinner, "is to discover new uses of cotton. Obviously, this should be from the point of view of utilizing the cotton after it has been converted into yarn or fabric, since it could be economically wrong to attempt new uses which disregard the value of the long staple of this fiber. Abundant sources of cellulose at lower prices are available for purposes where fiber length is unimportant."

New uses he cited as cotton duck for road surfacing, new in practice in South Carolina, Georgia and Texas, cotton backing t omake wood veneers that are put on like wallpaper, cotton duck for gabies of stylish English type cottages, cotton bags in place of paper bags and cotton cloth stationery. One big Chicago firm, he said, has purchased 2,000,000 cotton fiber letter-heads, "and are planning a further use of cotton in their promotional activities."

Cotton lintens and cotton hull fiber, he added, are large potential sources of cellulose. They are already in hand, prepared for market, without the extra expenses of gathering, necessary in some of the potential cellulose sources.

Mr. Skinner sketched the development of rayons and said:
"Notwithstanding this remarkable development the consumption of synthetic fibers is less than five per cent of the total consumption of all textile fibers. It is interesting to note that the South, has played a conspicuous part in the development of rayon, 90 per cent of the country's production being below the Mason and Dixon line."

CORTLAND, N. Y.—(AP)—Charles Clark, 32, his wife, Alice, 26, and their daughter, Charlotte Irene, 6, were killed during the night by coal gas.
The coroner said the gas came from a coal stove used in heating the apartment.

New Scarlet Fever Cure Is Predicted

Better Protection Than Anti-Toxin Is Found by Scientists

WASHINGTON, (AP)—A new way of combating children against scarlet fever, considered more potent than the anti-toxin now in use, was announced Tuesday by the United States public health service.

The new treatment is a "toxoid," consisting essentially of a mixture of scarlet fever germs and the anti-toxin manufactured by the blood to resist them, with formalin added as a preservative. The "toxoid" is still undergoing tests but is considered so satisfactory that physicians of the public health service are treating their own children with it.

The toxoid is not only considered a better protection against scarlet fever than the old anti-toxin but is much easier to take because it produces only a mild reaction in the child. Children given the old anti-toxin usually were quite ill temporarily so it has not been widely used.

The principle of the toxoid is to fight fire with fire. Scarlet fever germs that have been made harmless are used in it to fight other scarlet fever germs that are still dangerous.

When the scarlet fever germ invades the blood it produces a poison that causes high fever and rash. That poison is known as the toxin. The blood fights the toxin by producing an anti-toxin—a substance that is poisonous to the toxin. If the anti-toxin can be injected into the blood before the scarlet fever germ gets a foothold, the disease usually cannot get started.

The old scarlet fever anti-toxin was made by giving a horse scarlet fever, then making a serum containing the anti-toxin manufactured by his blood.

The new toxoid is made by mixing scarlet fever germs grown in the laboratory with the anti-toxin from horse blood.

Scarlet fever was fatal in about one out of 10 cases reported to the public health service from 47 states in 1930, the latest year for which figures are available.

Hoover Hesitant, Robinson Declares

Democratic Leader Attacks Wood for Defense of Administration

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The Democratic leader of the Senate, Robinson of Arkansas, charged in a statement Tuesday night that President Hoover's administration had been "marked by hesitation and vacillation."

The statement was issued through the Democratic National Committee in reply to a characterization of President Hoover's leadership by Chairman Wood of the Republican Congressional Committee Monday night as "courageous and constructive."

The leadership of President Hoover is illustrated by the hopeless plight of the Republican party since March 4, 1929," Robinson said, "and the utter fallacy of his leadership being 'constructive' is tragically attested by a course of executive action marked by hesitation and vacillation and by the almost total disappearance of foreign trade, the flight of American factories to foreign lands and 8,000,000 men and women wanting and waiting for work."

Recalling Wood's attacks on Hoover in war days, Robinson said if the president heard his address Monday night "he no doubt marveled at the metaphoric power of partisan zeal." He added:

"The president no doubt wondered as he listened to his exuberant soliloquist if he could be the same Will Wood who had made derisive references to the man who now occupies the White House."

The Democratic leader quoted Wood as saying, "Mr. Hoover is the most expensive luxury ever fastened upon the country," when the latter asked Congress to vote $100,000,000 for European relief.

He also quoted Wood as saying of Mr. Hoover, when he joined in an appeal for election of a Democratic Congress in 1918: "That should be sufficient to stamp him in the minds of men as being unfit for a responsible position of trust."

WOMAN POWER

The modern home-maker realizes the economy of electricity in the performance of tasks which kept her mother home-bound. She has countless leisure hours added to her life. This great servant—ELECTRICITY—never has a day off, is always punctual and costs but little.

A horsepower of Electricity is 746 Watts—less than three fourths of a single Kilowatt Hour. Motor-driven electrical household appliances, however, used only fractional horsepower motors. For example: Electric fans; electric mixers—One twentieth Horsepower. Electric sewing machine; vacuum—One tenth Horsepower.

"The Stars and Stripes Forever"

The nation's beloved "March King" had come to the end of his life's parade. And in this impressive setting, the body of John Philip Sousa lay in state in the band room of the Washington Marine barracks where the famed bandmaster started to play as a boy of 13.

Wedding Daze In the Army

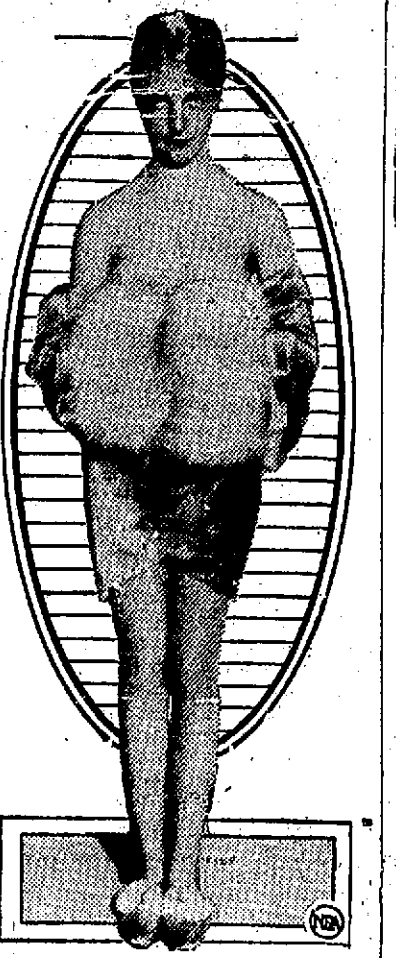

Maybe it isn't wedding etiquette for the bride to light up a cigarette before the ceremony. But the "bride" in this instance is Cadet Gentry (left) of the United States Military Academy and the "bridegroom" is Cadet Robert Finkenauf. And cigars were in order between acts of "The Merry Wives of West Point," the academy's annual show.

Dorow Leaves For 'Honor' Trial

Bound for Honolulu, Clarence Dorow, famous criminal lawyer, is shown above as he left Chicago to assist in the defense of Mrs. G. B. Fortescue and Lieutenant Thomas Massie, alleged "honor" slayers, accused of murdering the attacker of Mrs. Massie in Honolulu. The trial was postponed until March 28 to allow Dorow to reach the island.

O. Boy!

"The ideal boyish figure" . . . That's how officials of the Berlin National School of Art have described the form of Sybil Peach, an American girl. They've selected her as a model.

Escapes Russia

Daughter of the engineer of the czar's train and active in behalf of the White Russia forces, Mrs. Elena Olch, above, laughed gayly as she told of her terrifying escape from Petrograd and subsequent flight to Constantinople. Arrived in Los Angeles on the liner Santa Elisa, Mrs. Olch explained that in Constantinople she met and married Lieutenant Olch, U. S. N. Her mother and three sisters are detained in Petrograd and she cannot communicate with them.

She Shocked 'Em

A very fresh freshman indeed is Marion E. Shepard, 18, of University of Michigan, who—just to prove that she could do it—donned men's clothes and slipped past the guard at the door of the exclusive Michigan Union club where no woman is ever allowed. Caught, Marion promised she would never do it again. Her home is in Cleveland, Ohio, and she is shown above as she was dressed for the exploit.

Bank Receiver

As a home economics teacher in Wichita, Kan., Mrs. W. D. Ellison, above, taught school children how to raise the dough, but now she finds "raising the dough" for defunct banks much more interesting. Named as receiver for a closed bank at Phillipsburg, Kan., she handled its affairs so well that she has been named receiver for three others.

Pittsburgh Belle Weds 'Other Man'

Caroline Jackson Crittenden, society beauty of Pittsburgh, shown above, was engaged to Joseph Kinneer Morford, socially prominent law school student, until she made a visit to Tucson, Ariz. There she met Paul Schowalter and married him within two weeks. "There really is nothing I can say about it—except that it was a shock," Morford said when he learned of the marriage.

Faces Grill In Kidnaping

Police are reported closing in on Martin Depew, also known as Marshall Depew, hunted since last December in connection with the kidnaping of Mrs. Nell Q. Donnelly, wealthy Kansas City garment manufacturer, who was released before a ransom was collected. If Kansas City police capture Depew he will be questioned on the Lindbergh baby kidnaping, authorities state.

Seeing Stars

Check up the record for the 200-year swim. No mermaid has covered the distance in less time than the 2:51 minutes that it took Miss Kerstin Isberg to turn the trick recently. That star on the suit means she's the feminine aquatic star of Stockholm, Sweden.

Signs to Play With Smokies

Tommy Taylor, long a familiar figure in Southern League baseball circles, has signed with the Knoxville Smokies. He has played third base for Birmingham, New Orleans and Memphis, and is one of the real veterans of the circuit.

Negro Pastor Shoots Member of His Church

DALLAS, Texas.—(P)—Rev. J. C. Lawsons, 49, negro pastor of the Chapel Hill Free Will Baptist church, was in the county jail Monday charged with murder for the shooting of Roosevelt Miller, a member of his congregation, at a church Easter egg hunt Sunday. Scores of negro children fled screaming from the scene of the egg hunt when the killing occurred. Lawsons, said Miller had accused him of going around with his wife. He claimed that all afternoon at the egg hunt Miller "rolled his eyes like he was looking for trouble." Lawsons said several members of the congregation warned him that Miller had said he was going to shoot him.

Texas Resident Ends His Life With Pistol

Commits Suicide After Fatally Wounding Wife

OMAHA, Nebraska.—Cloyd Furgason committed suicide late Sunday after he fatally wounded his wife and 100 policemen had surrounded him in his home here. Furgason died instantly. His wife died several hours later. Officers said he apparently had been crazed by bootleg liquor.

Dies of Burns Received in Blaze Last Tuesday

Annual Capacity of New Plant at Dardanelle to Be 2,000,000 Pounds

DARDANELLE, Ark.—(P)—Work has been started on the new creamery here and the plant is expected to be in operation by the first of May. The Blue Valley Creamery company plans to establish a modern butter manufacturing plant with an annual capacity of 2,000,000 pounds.

Petrified Forest Found Near Piggott

Specimens of Cream Colored Crystallized Limestone Unearthed

PIGGOTT, Ark.—(P)—A petrified forest has been discovered near here. The only disadvantage for sightseers is that most of it is underground. A number of the logs, two feet in diameter and about 20 feet long, have been excavated. They are beautiful specimens of hickory trees in cream colored crystallized limestone. One of these petrified stumps, about six feet high, has been placed in the courthouse square here. Several petrified trees have been found on the surface, but most of them were encountered at a depth of from five feet to 90 feet underground. They were found in the digging of wells. The petrified forest's known area includes a section two miles wide and 12 miles long.

aria to find the handsome boy at the next table, gazing at her. Odd for that good-looking, superior chap to be attending business school! He was "Mister Dunbar" to the class and Helen had whispered the day before that he had been at Harvard, had been dropped, and that his father was making him "go in for business in a big way."

"The Dunbar Wheel Works," Helen had explained, important because she knew. And Susan had glanced again at the husky, tall young man with interest. It wasn't often she had the opportunity to see such a youth at close range. All the boys who grew up in Aunt Jessie's neighborhood were learning to be plumbers or driving laundry wagons or using something equally exciting. Young Mr. Dunbar seemed a prince from a strange land. Susan liked to listen to the rumble of his deep voice when he read his notes back to the dapper Miss Allen. It seemed faintly ridiculous that a young man who had attended junior proms, who had played football and made the college crew should be translating "Your letter of the ninth instant received and contents noted" to a shorthand teacher.

Susan squeezed the tears back and pretended not to know that Mr. Robert Dunbar was staring at her. Just the same, his interest made the girl's heart unaccountably lighter. She set to work again with the pot-books and dots. She would conquer this wretched book! She would!

When she went home that evening she was able for the first time to endure without flinching the packed street car with its swaying mass of sticky, tired humanity. The car ploughed west, stopping at almost every corner, swaying, jerking, clanging. But Susan hardly noticed. She was absorbed in a dream of her own—a dream in which a tall, fair, ruddy young man with enormous blue eyes played the hero's part.

Aunt Jessie spoke to her twice at supper—before Susan looked up guiltily.

"I didn't hear what you said," she stammered.

AUNT JESSIE looked annoyed. "Prim she was, 60 odd, her gray hair done pompadour in the fashion of her vanished youth."

"Don't see how your mind can ever be on your work, the way you dawdle at things," Aunt Jessie said sharply. "I asked you if you wanted some more potatoes."

Susan shook her head dreamily. "Nothing but a shadow, anyway, that's what you are," scolded Aunt Jessie. "You girls nowadays and your dieting!"

Susan looked down at her slim curves and laughed. No need for her to diet. She weighed 118 pounds. She was tall, too, and that helped. It was best to be tall this year of trailing skirts and what the magazines called "the romantic frock." Not that Susan owned any such! Her best frock was the last year's organdie that Aunt Jessie had let down. It had been Susan's class day dress. It was pink and had a huge bertha collar. Susan adored it. It was the nearest thing to a sure-enough party dress she had ever owned.

After she had helped Aunt Jessie with the dishes the girl flew to her room to see if the pink frock had been ironed. Aunt Jessie had promised to have it ready.

But no, there was no pink dream of a dress hanging in the narrow little closet. Susan's heart sank. Mary Ruth O'Hara was to call for her at eight and here it was half past seven already.

She called down the narrow passage. "Yoo-hoo, Aunt Jessie! I can't find my organdie any place."

The sharp voice came back, tinged with fresh annoyance: "Expect me to do everything! Sit I could get around to that extra job with the spring cleaning and all—"

Susan sank down on the bed, her brows crinkled with despair. She had promised! Aunt Jessie had promised!

The ready tears started to her eyes. Then of a sudden she dashed them away after a quick glance at the clock.

"I'll do it myself," she said. She rushed into the little bathroom where she washed her hands vigorously, ridding them of the scent of yellow soap and dishwater. She dashed cold water on her reddened eyes and flew to the kitchen. Aunt Jessie was in the back yard, discussing lettuce plants with Mrs. Sorenson, who lived next door.

Susan put the ironing board into place and plugged in the cord. She rooted out the dress in its towel wadding and sprinkled it anew. Her fingers flew and her breath came faster. Aunt Jessie hadn't wanted her to go to Rose Milton's party. That was the real reason she hadn't ironed the pink organdie. Aunt Jessie was always doing things like this. She had forgotten what it was to be young and spent most of her time trying to repress the natural youthful impulses of her niece.

But Susan would not let her conquer. She was young and that meant being alive, hopeful. Suddenly she began to sing. Aunt Jessie, coming in from the yard, regarded the girl with irritation.

"Land's sake!" said Aunt Jessie with some asperity. "You going to that fool jamboree, anyhow? I thought you'd get to bed early for once and have done with all this galling."

Susan smiled at her. Her lips curved and she said good-humoredly, "Answer that front door, will you? That's a lamb! I hear Mary Ruth on the front stoop."

THE MILTONS' front parlor was filled to overflowing when Susan and Mary Ruth arrived. Susan felt shy. Most of the girls were coming with their "boy friends" and only she and Mary Ruth, who was little and skinny and had buck teeth, came alone—Mary Ruth because she had never had a "boy friend" and Susan because Aunt Jessie wouldn't let her come with anyone.

So Susan had no admirers. She had no go to her few parties unescorted. Usually she didn't mind that, but tonight, somehow, she hated it. "Hurry up, can't you?" she asked Mary Ruth rather pettishly.

Susan fairly ran up the front steps and into the front parlor when they reached Rose Milton's home. She saw a confusion of eyes, heard a gabble of tongues. She rushed straight upstairs to the front bedroom where she took off her last year's Panama hat, depositing it on the already overcrowded double bed.

Suddenly Susan felt she must be going to cry. She wondered why she had come. She would be miserable, all evening. She just knew it! She would sit in a corner, smiling a stiff, set smile and trying to look as if she were having a good time. The other girls would dance with their escorts to the music of the radio and Susan would sneak out to the kitchen and beg to be allowed to help with the refreshments just to conceal from the assembled company the fact that she wasn't enjoying herself. Oh, she wanted to run away! Everything was horrible and life was hopeless!

Rose led her toward the pianist. "Ben Lampman, here's the girl

SHE dabbed at her eyes and leaned across the welter of hand-painted china toilet things to powder her nose. Mrs. Milton, stout and voluble, bustled in, wearing a gay flowered georgette. "What on earth's the matter, Susan Carey?"

The girl stammered, "I—I got something in my eye."

"Well, now, let's see!" Mrs. Milton flipped a big white handkerchief out of the top drawer and made a funnel of one corner. "Let me at it. I'm great at getting those things out. Once Papa got a speck out of his eye so big he made a joke out of it. He says, 'I bet I could get the Consumer's Company they'd sent out a truck for that load of coal.' Let me see, Susan."

The girl winked her eyes rapidly, regaining her composure.

"It's all right now, honestly. I believe I've got rid of it."

"That's good," Mrs. Milton beamed at her. "You look very pretty tonight. I must say, Pink's your color. The boys'll be after you, Susan Carey. What I say is what's the use of you bothering your head with all this business course nonsense when you'll soon be stepping out and getting married." Her laugh wheezed out suddenly, disconcertingly.

Susan smiled. In some obscure way the outlook had been lightened.

"I'm going to have to earn my living in the meantime," she said. "How's your aunt?" Mrs. Milton wanted to know.

"Oh, Aunt Jessie's fine," Susan frowned a little as she said it. Mrs. Milton's sharp eyes caught the frown.

"As strict as ever?" she wanted to know.

Susan flushed and nodded. Mrs. Milton chuckled sympathetically. "Well, as I always say, I don't believe in bringing up girls too stiff-necked," she observed comfortingly. "Mine always had a good time. There's Veronica who's got herself a good husband and a nice home out in Oak Park. And Grace out in Pasadena. My girls had lots of beaux and I encourage 'em. I believe in it. If you don't see they have a good time somebody else will. And that may not be so good. Your Aunt Jessie's old style like my mother. My mother thought we ought to sit on the front steps, all in a row, until we were 30." She laughed wheezily. "Well, none of us did, both myself and Lide—that's my younger sister—clipped."

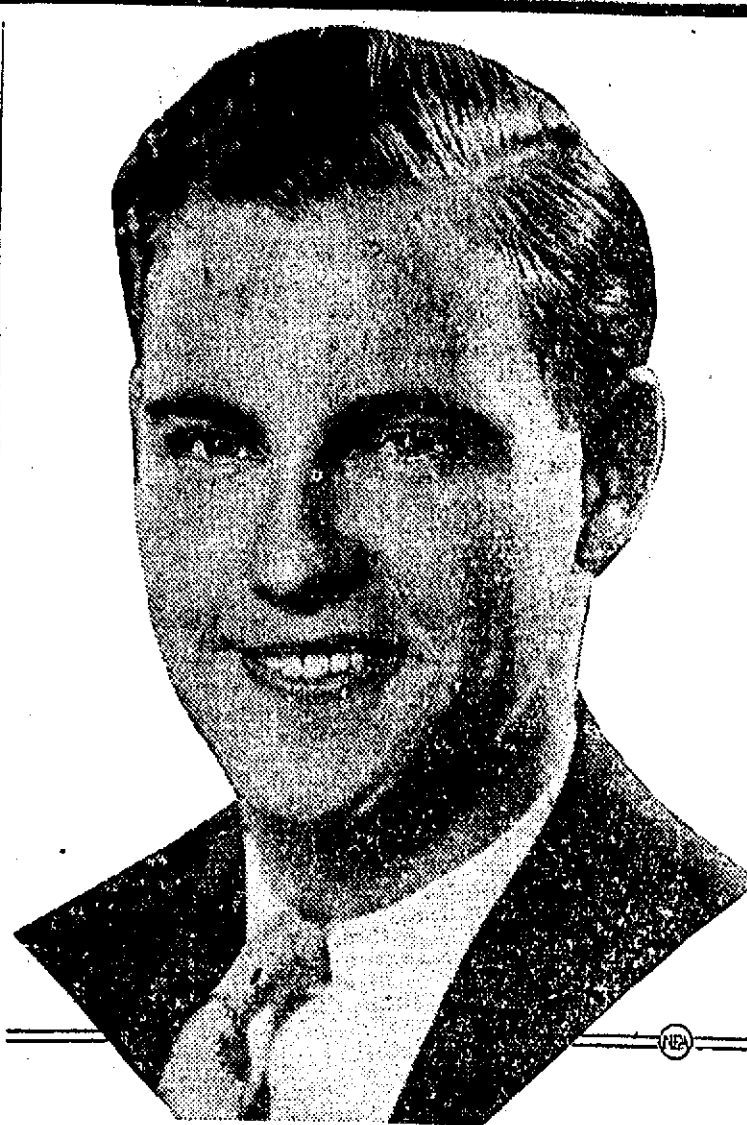

Susan smiled in sympathy. "But I don't particularly want to marry young," she explained. "I've got to work and help Aunt Jessie because she raised me and I owe her a lot. I just want a little freedom and some fun."

"That's right. That's right," Mrs. Milton patted her on the shoulder. "Now you run along back and start having some. There are some boys there who won't want to miss you in your pink dress."

A bit reluctantly Susan obeyed. Rose Milton, a tall blond girl wearing many blue ruffles, rushed up to her. The rugs in the big front room had been rolled back and four or five couples were dancing. Not to the music of the radio, a dark-haired young man was pounding out "St. Louis Blues" at the piano in the corner. He played with his whole body. Hands, feet, even his head moved to the rhythm. Susan stared at him, fascinated.

Rose led her toward the pianist. "Ben Lampman, here's the girl

grasped his hands and pulled

ROBERT DUNBAR

I told you about. Susan Carey. She's not a nitwit like the rest of us. She has brains. Talk to her."

The young man stopped playing "St. Louis Blues" in the very midst of a mournful phrase and jumped up. He was tall and lean and vaguely rumpled looking. Susan put her slim hand into the crushing grip he offered her. Someone turned on the radio after a moment or two of grumbling on the part of the interrupted dancers and young Lampman murmured, "Want to dance?"

Susan did. Although she had so few opportunities she danced well. Even this indifferent partner could not spoil her pleasure in rhythm. "Did—did anybody ever tell you that you looked like Joan Crawford?" he asked.

Susan smiled and fluttered a glance upward from beneath long lashes. "Yes," she murmured.

"I suppose like all the girls you want to go into the movies," he muttered, trying to make conversation.

"I hadn't thought about it," said Susan. "I'm learning to be a big business girl."

"That's terrible," barked Ben Lampman. "I think the men in the gay nineties were right. Women's place is in the home."

Susan stared. She thought he must be joking. But the young man was in deadly earnest. "Makes me sick, seeing these swarms of young girls all over downtown, morning and night," he said. "They ought to be in nice kitchens or taking care of kids."

"How all-ly!" trilled Rose Milton, overhearing this last. "Italy, Italy, Italy, girls and boys, and listen to Ben rave. He's on the stump again."

THE young man reddened. Rose grasped his hands and pulled man's place was in the home. He and Aunt Jessie would get along rather well.

However, Ben spared her any more harangues. He talked desultorily of music, of what he wanted to do. He dreamed of having an orchestra of his own "like Whitman's." Susan could sympathize with this.

"I think that would be wonderful," she told him enthusiastically. "Do you, honestly?" He was almost pathetic in his desire for approval.

"Yes, I do." And then Susan told him about her struggles with the demon, shorthand, and her fear that she would never conquer what Aunt Jessie called "the business world."

BEN LAMPMAN growled, "Stick with it. You'll be successful. I can see that. Don't mind what I said tonight about girls working. I know that's behind the times. From what you tell me you've got a hard row to hoe with this aunt of yours. You've got to strike out for yourself."

Susan flushed and stammered loyally. "Aunt Jessie is all right. She just doesn't understand."

Now they were at her doorstep. The little house looked shrouded and secretive. For a minute Susan was terribly nervous. What if Aunt Jessie should be waiting up, should call out, "Come straight in this minute, Susan Carey!" She had been known to do that.

Hastily she held out her hand. "It was awfully nice of you to bring me home," she murmured. "Thanks so much."

Ben Lampman grasped the hand feverishly. "I want to come and see you sometime," he said.

Susan felt a distaste for the young man's ardor. "I—I don't know," she said vaguely. "Maybe, sometime."

"I'll telephone," he promised as she ran up the stairs.

Aunt Jessie called out, "Who was that you were talking to?"

Susan said, "Just a friend of those who brought me home."

She crept into her room, turned on the light and moved about as softly as possible, making ready for bed. After she had hung away the pink dress and slipped into her worn old dressing gown she stood for a long time staring at herself in the mirror.

Susan yawned and just then Aunt Jessie, to whom every creak and whisper in the little house spoke as plainly as a child to its mother, called out, "For heaven's sake, Susan Carey, stop primping in front of the mirror and get to bed. You've got to get up in the morning."

Oh, the morning! As if she'd forgotten the sarcastic shorthand teacher and the difficult tests there would be next day. Susan thought of Ben Lampman and squared her shoulders. "I'll pass those tests," she said sturdily. "And I'll get a job and make money and put in an oil burner for Aunt Jessie and get a silver fox for myself. I'll show them!"

Irrelevantly Susan wondered what Robert Dunbar would have thought of Rose Milton's party. He probably would have been bored to death. Dancing to the radio, eating brick ice cream from a golden oak dining room table, would probably not fit in with his ideas of gaiety.

"Wonder what he's really like," Susan speculated just before she dropped off to sleep.

She had no notion how soon she was to know about that!

Six Held in Kentucky Are Released On Bond

FINEVILLE, Ky., (P)—Six persons, five of them women, from New York and Philadelphia, who have been held in jail in Bell and Harlan counties since January 4 were ordered released on appearance bonds of $500 each Monday morning. It was said by W. J. Stone, attorney for the defendants.

The six were among 14 arrested when officers raided national miners union headquarters here and found a quantity of communistic literature.

The other prisoners held as a result of the January raid remained in the Bell and Harlan county jails.
